A medieval terminal of silver, with rounded shoulders, tapering to a point, so as to give the impression of a leaf. The front surface is raised, and is decorated with three grooves within a chamfered border. The reverse is plain and flat. At the terminal's widest point there appears the remainder of a square shaft. Its precise function is difficult to determine. The terminal is silver and of pre-industrial manufacture. It is likely to date from the thirteenth to the fifteenth centuries. Dimensions: length 15 mm, width 9 mm. Consequently, in terms of age and as the object contains a minimum of 10% precious metal it qualifies as Treasure under the stipulations of the Treasure Act 1996.
