

VESSEL

Unique ID: YORYM-F85727

Object type certainty: Certain

Workflow status: Awaiting validation

A fragment of a cast copper alloy vessel of medieval to post-medieval date. The fragment is part of the leg of a cooking vessel. The leg has a flat base and a slightly curved, upright back. The foot is wide, with two ridges up the front, resembling claws.

The metal is a dark greenish-brown colour and is slightly worn and pitted. The fragment weighs 65g. These vessels date from 1350-1850 and would have been used as a cooking vessel.
