Unique ID: NMS-F4D285

Object type certainty: Certain

Workflow status: Awaiting validation

Late medieval to early post medieval copper alloy hinged book fitting dating to the period c. AD 1400 - 1600. The attachment end comprises two loops which house the corroded remains of the iron axis bar. The plate is rectangular with an engrailed front edge. At the hinge end are two rivet holes, each surrounded by two concentric engraved circles. A third, empty, rivet hole, also bordered by two concentric engraved circles, is positioned at the central point of the front edge.
