Unique ID: NLM-2492A6

Object type certainty: Certain

Workflow status: Awaiting validation

A clipped and worn medieval silver penny, probably Henry VI (first reign; 1422-1461), York mint, possibly pinecone-mascle issue (1430-4; North 1466). Ref: North 1991: 77.

Attribution to pincone-mascle issue owing to lack of quatrefoil on reverse, a typical feature of York-minted coins.

Obverse description: Facing bare-shouldered bust with heavy eyelids, pointed chin which appears separated from neck, ornaments of open crown appear to touch

Obverse inscription: [h]ENRIC[---]X A[--]; possibly saltire punctuation.

Reverse description: Long cross, three pellets in each angle. Small letters in legend.

Reverse inscription: [CIV]I/TAS/EBO?R/[--]

Diameter: 17.5mm, Weight: 0.97gms, die axis: 6

Notes:

Found with two other late medieval pennies from the York mint, NLM-24A4F3 and NLM-24B662, all within an area of c.40 metres; all are lightly clipped. They may constitute parts of a disturbed hoard. If other comparable coins have been retrieved from the immediate vicinity by other finders, they, too, may in due course have to be considered as part of the same putative group, Treasure case reference 2018 T622.
