Minister's Foreword

I am very pleased to introduce the Treasure Act Annual Report 2009, which provides a report on the operation of the Treasure Act 1996 during 2009.

The Treasure Act 1996 continues to be successful, ensuring that many of the most important archaeological discoveries are acquired by museums for public benefit. A further 778 Treasure cases were reported in 2009 and museums have acquired or are seeking to acquire 261 of these.

I welcome the fact that the number of cases where one or more parties have waived their right to a reward has increased from 51 in 2008 to 71 in 2009, enabling museums to acquire such finds at no or reduced cost. Whilst I am grateful to all finders who have promptly reported Treasure in 2009, I am particularly appreciative of those public-spirited individuals who have waived their right to a reward.

I am keen to acknowledge the generosity of the funding bodies whose grants have enabled museums to acquire Treasure finds. My particular thanks go to the Art Fund, Goldsmiths Company, the Headley Trust, the Heritage Lottery Fund, the National Heritage Memorial Fund and the V&A/MLA Purchase Grant Fund, as well as the many individuals and organisations that helped fund the acquisition of the Staffordshire Hoard.

The success of the Treasure Act is in no small part due to the Portable Antiquities Scheme and its network of Finds Liaison Officers, who work closely with finders, advising them of their legal obligations, helping them report finds, and, together with curators at the British Museum and National Museum of Wales, writing reports on the items found. I am also very grateful to the curators and conservators at national museums, who have written reports for coroners and/or undertaken scientific analysis on Treasure, and also those in the Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure at the British Museum who have managed the Treasure process and ensured the prompt payments of rewards.

I would like to acknowledge the work of the local Coroners who hold inquests on Treasure cases.

The Treasure Valuation Committee plays an essential role in the Treasure process, providing the Secretary of State with independent advice in the valuations of Treasure finds, and I would like to thank the members for all their hard work, especially Professor Norman Palmer, who stood down in May 2011 after serving on the committee for 14 years; for the last ten as Chairman. I have appointed Professor Lord Renfrew of Kaimsthorn as his successor.

Introduction

Under the Treasure Act 1996, finders have a legal obligation to report all finds of potential Treasure. For a summary see finds.org.uk/treasure or the leaflet Advice for Finders of Archaeological Objects, Including Treasure.

The Act allows a national or local museum to acquire Treasure finds for public benefit. If this happens, a reward is paid, which is (normally) shared equally between the finder and landowner, though the interested parties may wish to waive their rights to a reward, enabling museums to acquire such finds at no or reduced cost. Rewards are fixed at the full market value of the find, determined by the Secretary of State on the advice of an independent panel of experts known as the Treasure Valuation Committee.

Although Treasure finds account for a relatively small proportion of archaeological finds found in England and Wales by the public, any archaeological finds may be recorded with the Portable Antiquities Scheme: this data is published online at finds.org.uk. The Scheme and its network of local archaeologists, known as Finds Liaison Officers, play an increasingly important role in the operation of the Treasure Act, advising finders of their legal obligations, providing advice on the process and writing reports on potential Treasure finds for local coroners.

Organisation

The administration of the Treasure process is undertaken by the Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure at the British Museum, which employs a Treasure Registrar and four Assistant Treasure Registrars, one of whom is part-time.

This work involves the preparation of Treasure cases for inquest (at a Coroner's Court), the handing of disclaimed cases, the secretariat of the Treasure Valuation Committee, and the payment of rewards to finders/landowners.

Treasure Cases 2009

Number of Treasure cases and geographic distribution

The number of Treasure cases reported in 2009 was 778 (Table A), a slight decrease (of 3.6%) on 2008; this is still a 287% increase on the first full year of the Act (1998). 860 finds were reported Treasure in 2010.

Table A: Number of Treasure cases reported 1988–2010 (England, Wales & Northern Ireland).

The high level of the reporting of Treasure reflects a wider understanding on the part of finders of their obligations under the Treasure Act, through the education and outreach work of the Portable Antiquities Scheme and its network of Finds Liaison Officers.

Table B illustrates the geographic distribution of Treasure finds. This shows that in 2009 reporting of Treasure was highest in Norfolk (82 cases), followed by Suffolk (65), then Essex (54), whereas several areas (mostly metropolitan ones) have only a handful (or no) cases reported. This broadly reflects the pattern of cases reported since 1997. Reporting of Treasure in 2009 was significantly less in Wales (20 cases) and Northern Ireland (0) compared with England (758); Wales has only a single full-time Portable Antiquities Scheme post (though finds recording work is also undertaken by the Welsh Archaeological Trusts) and Northern Ireland is not covered by the Scheme.

Analysis of Treasure finds

Table C provides the dispositional outcome of Treasure cases according to period and type. This shows that of the cases reported in 2009, 34% (261) have been (or are in the process of being) acquired by a museum, of which 71 of these were donated. 48.97% (381) of all finds were disclaimed and returned to finder/landowner, 13.75% (107) were deemed not to be Treasure, and 3.73% (29) are still to be determined. Therefore, compared with 2008 slightly fewer cases are being acquired by museums (down from 265 to 261), but more of these are being donated (up from 51 to 71).

<sup>1</sup> This covers finds that have been acquired as well as finds where museums have made an expression of interest, but have not yet acquired.

The number of Treasure finds acquired by chronological period varies and differs between the categories of objects and coins. Of the objects reported Treasure in 2009, museums acquired 57.89% (22) of those that were Bronze Age, 57.14% (4) Iron Age, 50% (45) Early Medieval, 34.33% (23) Roman, 34.29% (60) Medieval, 25.11% (56) Post-Medieval and 4.26% (2) of those that were undiagnostic. Of the coins reported, museum acquired 66.67% (6) that were Iron Age, 59.26% (16) Medieval, 50% (4) Early Medieval, 47.37% (18) Roman and 23.81% (5) Post-Medieval. In general terms, therefore, museums are more likely to acquire objects that are more ancient, though proportionally fewer Roman finds are acquired as these are more common.

Table D: Method of discovery for 2009 Treasure finds (England and Wales).

	Number of finds	%
Metal detecting	737	94.73
Archaeological find	21	2.69
Chance find	13	1.68
Reported by buyer	7	0.9
Total	778

Table D gives the method of discovery of finds reported Treasure in 2009. As in previous years, metal-detecting accounts for the vast majority (94.73%) of Treasure cases reported in England and Wales. Archaeological finds account for only 2.69% of 2009 Treasure finds. The largest increase in reporting (though the sample size was small) was in Treasure finds reported by a buyer (dealer in antiquities), which rose from three (0.4%) in 2007 to five (0.62%) in 2008 to seven (0.9%) in 2009. This might reflect the work of the Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure monitoring eBay for unreported Treasure, though it should be noted that several cases listed on eBay by finders (rather than dealers) were also stopped.

Enforcement

It is the aim of the Treasure Act to encourage people to report finds rather than pursue prosecutions. This is reflected in the fact that finders have 14 days to report Treasure from when they first know or have reason to believe the item they have found is potential Treasure. However, that is not to say finders who fail to report Treasure will not be prosecuted.

The Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure works closely with relevant colleagues in local police forces, HM Revenue & Customs, and the Museums, Libraries and Archives Council (MLA) Export Licensing Unit, as well as the Metropolitan Police Service's Art & Antiques Unit and English Heritage's Heritage Crime Initiative.

The British Museum's Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure continues to monitor eBay for items of potential Treasure, and question vendors of such finds. In 2009 intelligence on 112 cases was logged and made available to the police. Since September 2007, the Deputy Head of Portable Antiquities and Treasure has been an Expert Adviser for export licensing applications of metal-detected finds, and approved 197 export licences in 2009, of which 93.91% were exported outside the European Union. In several cases exporters of unreported potential Treasure were asked to report these items in accordance with the Treasure Act.
