Minister's foreword

I am glad to introduce the Treasure Act Annual Report 2011, which provides a report on the operation of the Treasure Act 1996 during the calendar year 2011.

The Treasure Act 1996 is an enduring and thriving success, ensuring that museums are able to acquire the most significant archaeological discoveries for the benefit of all. 2011 saw a record number of potential Treasure finds reported in England and Wales (969), representing a 12.8% increase over the number reported in the previous year. Of these items, 345 have been (or are to be) acquired by museums.

Many museum acquisitions have been made possible only through the kind assistance of funding bodies, particularly the Art Fund, Headley Trust, Heritage Lottery Fund, National Heritage Memorial Fund and the V&A Purchase Grant Fund. We should be thankful to these organisations for their recognition of the importance of archaeological finds and their support of museums' efforts to acquire them. I am also impressed with local fundraising campaigns, and it is heartening to see so many individuals and organisations in local communities supporting the acquisition of Treasure items and investing in their heritage. It is especially satisfying that the number of interested parties waiving their right to a reward for Treasure finds remains high, with individuals waiving their share in 99 cases. These donations have allowed 49 museums to acquire finds that may otherwise have not been available for the public to study and enjoy.

There are many bodies and people who deserve praise for the continued success of the Treasure Act, in particular the Portable Antiquities Scheme and its local network of Finds Liaison Officers (FLOs), to whom most finds of Treasure are reported. The FLOs role is vital in disseminating information about the Act and archaeological best practice to finders of treasure and landowners. They are also indispensable in facilitating the administration of Treasure cases and providing the logistical means for the Act to function. Together with curators, scientists and conservators at the British Museum and National Museum Wales, they also provide expert reports on Treasure finds for Coroners, who, along with their staff, are also owed thanks for their diligence in holding Treasure inquests. The Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure at the British Museum (now part of the Department of Britain, Europe and Prehistory) supports Coroners in England and serves as the secretariat for the Treasure Valuation Committee and I am grateful for their continued excellent work. In order to ensure the long-term success of the Act, and that it reflects current practice and works as efficiently as possible, the Government will soon begin a Review of the Treasure Act Code of Practice. This will also consider the definition of Treasure, and whether that should be revised.

I would also like to acknowledge the invaluable contribution of the Treasure Valuation Committee, chaired by Lord Renfrew of Kaimsthorn, which considered over 320 treasure cases during 2011. I am thankful for the services of all of the Committee members, who voluntarily provide their time and expertise.

Introduction

Under the Treasure Act 1996, finders have a legal obligation to report all finds of potential Treasure. For a summary see finds.org.uk/treasure or the leaflet Advice for Finders of Archaeological Objects, Including Treasure.

The Act allows a national or local museum to acquire Treasure finds for public benefit. If this happens, a reward is paid, which is (normally) shared equally between the finder and landowner, though the interested parties may wish to waive their rights to a reward, enabling museums to acquire such finds at no or reduced cost. Rewards are fixed at the full market value of the find, determined by the Secretary of State on the advice of an independent panel of experts known as the Treasure Valuation Committee.

Although Treasure finds account for a relatively small proportion of archaeological finds found in England and Wales by the public, finders are encouraged to record all archaeological with the Portable Antiquities Scheme: this data is published online at finds.org.uk. The Scheme and its network of local archaeologists – experts in recording small finds, known as Finds Liaison Officers – play an increasingly important role in the operation of the Treasure Act, advising finders of their legal obligations, providing advice on the process and writing reports on potential Treasure finds for local coroners.

Organisation

The administration of the Treasure Act is undertaken by the Department of Britain, Europe and Prehistory (formerly the Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure) at the British Museum, which employs a Treasure Registrar and four Assistant Treasure Registrars, one of whom is part-time. This work involves the preparation of Treasure cases for inquest (at a Coroner's Court), the handling of disclaimed cases, the secretariat of the Treasure Valuation Committee, and the payment of rewards to finders/landowners.

Treasure Valuation Committee

The Committee's terms of reference are detailed in the Treasure Act 1996 Code of Practice. In short, it is tasked to recommend to the Secretary of State the value of Treasure finds, to recommend abatements of rewards in the case of misbehaviour on the part of the interested parties, and to recommend an apportionment of the reward when there is a disagreement among the parties. The Committee is made up of independent experts appointed for their knowledge of the antiquities trade; its membership also includes someone to represent the interests of finders, a museums' representative, and an expert in cultural property law.

Membership of the Committee at the time of publication consisted of: Lord Renfrew of Kaimsthorn (Chairman), Prof Ian Carradice, Dr Tim Pestell, Mr John Cherry, Ms Hetty Gleave, Mr Peter Clayton and Dr David Dykes.

More information on the Treasure Valuation Committee, as well as electronic versions of the minutes of the meetings of the Committee, can be found online at finds.org.uk/treasure

Number of Treasure cases and geographic distribution

The number of Treasure cases reported in 2011 was 969 (Table A), an increase of 12.8% on 2010. This is a 386% increase on the first full year of the Act (1998).

The high level of the reporting of Treasure reflects a wider understanding on the part of finders of their obligations under the Treasure Act, through the education and outreach work of the Portable Antiquities Scheme and its Finds Liaison Officers.

Table B illustrates the geographic distribution of Treasure finds. This shows that in 2011 reporting of Treasure in England continued to be heaviest along the eastern half of the country, with Essex being the area where the largest number of cases were reported (91). This was followed by the other counties of East Anglia, Norfolk (80 cases) and Suffolk (76). Further north, Lincolnshire – not counting the North and East parts of that county – accounted for 74 finds and North Yorkshire for 50 finds. The south-east and south-central portions of the country retained steady levels of reporting, where Wiltshire saw 41 finds handed in, followed by Kent (39), the Isle of Wight (33) and Hampshire (29). This broadly reflects the pattern of cases reported since 1997.

Several areas showed remarkable spikes in the number of finds reported. Gloucestershire increased from 5 cases in 2010 to 14 in 2011, while Buckinghamshire also saw an increase from 12 to 23 cases. Interestingly, the number of finds reported from Greater London jumped by 100% from 11 to 22.

The number of Treasure cases reported from Wales (28) was a record amount. This year also saw the first find reported from Denbighshire in five years, and a doubling in the amount of treasure cases from Monmouthshire, from 3 to 6. The overall number remains significantly less than the number of finds reported from England (941). Northern Ireland had no finds of Treasure reported in 2011. Wales has a single full-time Portable Antiquities Scheme post (though finds-recording work is also undertaken by the Welsh Archaeological Trusts) and Northern Ireland is not covered by the Scheme.

Analysis of Treasure finds

Table C provides the dispositional outcome of Treasure cases according to period and type. Overall, of the 969 cases reported as potential Treasure, 36% (345) were acquired (or are in the process of being acquired) by museums. What is impressive to note is that of those cases, 29% (99) saw one or more parties waive their right to a reward under the Act, thereby enabling museums to acquire the finds at reduced or no public expense. The proportion of Treasure finds acquired by donation has steadily risen over the past 15 years through a policy of proactive encouragement of interested parties to consider waiving their right to a reward.

Just over 50% (490) of finds were found to qualify as Treasure but the Crown disclaimed its interest in them and they were returned to the finder/landowner, and just over 10% of finds were found not to qualify as Treasure and were similarly returned. As in previous years, the majority of 'not Treasure' cases were for Post-Medieval objects which upon examination were deemed not to be old enough to meet the criteria for Treasure. While this number remains high, it demonstrates a widespread awareness of the Treasure Act and willingness on the part of finders to submit items about whose age they are not absolutely, for examination under the Act.

¹ This covers finds that have been acquired as well as finds where museums have made an expression of interest, but have not yet acquired.

² Includes objects 'of age' but not attributable to a particular historic period.

The number of Treasure finds acquired by chronological period varies and differs between the categories of objects and coins. Of the objects reported as Treasure in 2011, museums acquired, through purchase or donation, 74% (39) of those that were Bronze Age, 63% (7) Iron Age, 57% (60) Early Medieval, 31% (65) Medieval, 37% (31) Roman, and 22% (74) Post-Medieval. Of the coins reported, museums acquired or were donated 75% (12) of those that were Early Medieval, 53% (17) Medieval, 47% (7) Iron Age, 47% (21) Roman, and 37% (7) that were Post-Medieval.

It is also worth noting that the total number of cases from the Bronze Age to the Early Medieval period (329) is substantially higher than the previous year (263), and that the rise in the total number of object cases is also aided by a large increase in Medieval and Post-Medieval finds having been reported (546 in 2011 to 485 in 2010). The number of coin cases reported in 2011 represents a similar distribution among each period with the figures from 2010, and the total figures are quite close, with two more cases being reported in 2011 than 2010.

Table D gives the method of discovery of finds reported as Treasure in 2011. As in previous years, metal-detecting accounts for the vast majority (91.85%) of Treasure cases reported in England and Wales. Archaeological finds accounted for 1.96% of 2010 Treasure finds. 39 finds (4.02%) are awaiting confirmation of the circumstances of their discovery. Chance finds, where the finder discovered Treasure on the surface of the ground or in the course of performing another activity like gardening, make up 1.55% of all finds. Several people made finds (4, 0.41%) whilst looking for them with ‘eyes only’ in the course of fieldwalking or searching the Thames foreshore. A very small number of Treasure cases (2; 0.21%) were reported not by the finder but by the person who acquired the item(s).

Table D: Method of discovery for 2011 Treasure finds (England and Wales).

	Number of finds	%
Metal detecting	890	91.85

Archaeological	19	1.96
Chance find	15	1.55
Fieldwalking/Searching foreshore	4	0.41

Total	969	100

Enforcement

It is the aim of the Treasure Act to encourage people to report finds rather than pursue prosecutions. This is reflected in the fact that finders have 14 days to report Treasure from when they first know or have reason to believe the item they have found is potential Treasure. However, that is not to say finders who fail to report Treasure will not be prosecuted.

The Department of Britain, Europe and Prehistory (formerly the Department of Portable Antiquities and Treasure) at the British Museum works closely with relevant colleagues in local police forces, HM Revenue & Customs, and the Arts Council England (ACE) Export Licensing Unit, as well as the Metropolitan Police Service's Art & Antiques Unit and the Alliance to Reduce Heritage Crime.

The British Museum's Department of Britain, Europe and Prehistory continues to monitor eBay for items of potential Treasure, and questions vendors of such finds. In 2011, intelligence on 148 cases was logged and made available to the police.

Since September 2007, the Deputy Head of the section has been an Expert Adviser for export licensing applications of metal-detected finds. In several cases exporters of unreported potential Treasure were asked to report these items in accordance with the Treasure Act.
